JEUX D'ÉCHECS

A en croire une légende indienne, le jeu d'échecs a été inventé par un brahmane nommé SISSA ; ayant enseigné le jeu au roi SHARAM, SISSA se serait vu demander par le monarque enthousiasmé d'indiquer ce qu'il souhaiterait recevoir en récompense et aurait fixé son choix sur du blé, à raison d'un grain pour la première case de l'échiquier, deux grains pour la deuxième, quatre grains pour la troisième et ainsi de suite en doublant chaque fois jusqu'à la soixante-quatrième et dernière case. SHARAM eut tort d'accéder à une demande apparemment si modeste car le calcul révélu qu'il lui fallait fournir au brahmane 18 446 744 073 709 551 615 grains de blé, soit beaucoup plus que tous les greniers du royaume pouvaient en contenir.

Introduit en Occident par les Arabes qui l'avaient sans doute appris eux-mêmes des Perses, le jeu d'échecs a toujours été très apprécié en France où, du Moyen Age au XIXe siècle, d'illustres personnages ont compté parmi ses adeptes: Jean le Bon (durant sa captivité à Londres), Charles V, les ducs de Bourgogne, les comtes de Flandre, Henri IV, Mme de Sévigné, Voltaire, Napoléon Ier, Louis XVIII, etc...

L'époque moderne a sonné l'heure de la démocratisation et, de nos jours, plus de trois millions de joueurs obéissent, dans le monde entier, aux lois édictées par leur autorité suprême, la Fédération internationale des Echecs, créée à Paris en 1924. Divertissement qui excite au plus haut point les facultés intellectuelles et exige de ses pratiquants à la fois subtilité, concentration, résistance physique et nerveuse, le jeu d'échecs est considéré par les uns comme une science, par les autres comme un sport ou par certains encore comme un art délicat entre tous, ce qui lui vaut d'avoir conservé et confirmé à travers les siècles la flatteuse et juste appellation de "jeu des rois, roi des jeux".
